

TO ASK SQUIRES TO BUILD JAIL

Shelby county will have a new jail at the earliest possible moment, to replace the old Civil War institution now serving as a place of housing county prisoners. This was decided when E. W. Hale, John Brown and Luther Jones, county commissioners, met late Thursday with Judge J. Ed Richards for First criminal court; Sam O. Bates, attorney-general, and Sheriff O. H. Perry. The officials decided that they would put a request for a new jail up to the Shelby county court. Political affiliations make it almost certain that the court will vote for the new jail.

An enabling act was passed several years ago, authorizing a $250,000 bond issue for the construction of a new jail. Increase in building material and labor costs probably will cause the powers behind the movement to ask for $500,000.

It is probable that opposition to the construction of the new jail will arise in the county court, certain of the magistrates believing that construction costs are too high at this time. But the political lines within the court makes it almost certain the sheriff will have a new housing place for prisoners.

GAS CONTROVERSY STILL UNCHANGED

There were no new developments Friday in the gas controversy. Walter P. Armstrong, city attorney, stated that he had not been advised by gas company officials to whether or not they would accept the city's proposal in view of the attitude of the federal court and the utilities commission.

As the matter now stands, gas and electric consumers are apparently no nearer securing full service than they were two weeks ago. The receiver's certificates are unaltered and the increased rate is ineffective.

All objections raised by the gas company and the receivers have been swept aside save the provision that F. P. Prout, having authority to discontinue increased rates in the event of disagreement with the receivers as to management, operations or service.

Makes Report Of Robbery And Finds Man Already Caught

While R. S. Watson, proprietor of a store at Walls, Miss., was making report of a burglary at his store Thursday night to clerks in the office of Chief Griffin at police quarters Friday, Detective Horan had both the thief and part of the loot in another office at the station.

The negro looked suspicious to Horan and he was arrested. Merchandise filling a suit case, and a quantity of jewelry was being carried by the negro, who gave his name as Albert L. Haper, claiming to live at 473 South Fourth street.

Horan did not know to whom the loot belonged until Watson made complaint at headquarters. The negro admits the robbery, police say.

HISTORIC CHURCH IS 93 YEARS OLD

Court Avenue Presbyterians to Observe Anniversary.

The 93rd anniversary, and Home-Coming day will be observed at the Court Avenue Presbyterian church Sunday. Special preparations have been made for the occasion. An augmented choir and an orchestra of 16 pieces will furnish an elaborate musical program, and the pastor, Dr. H. C. Hodstead, will preach on "Retrospect and Prospect."

When Memphis was in its early beginnings this organization was formed, and enjoys the distinction of never having changed its location. The church has been served by an array of eminent pastors only two of the former now living, one of these, Rev. Dr. King, being in impaired health.

Many notable conversions have taken place within the walls of this historic edifice, prominent among them was that of Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest. This took place under the ministry of Dr. George T. Stainback, during his successful pastorate.

One night Dr. Stainback preached on the parable of the men who built on the sand and on the rock. Forrest was much impressed and communicated his feeling to Dr. Stainback, but said he thought there was no hope for him. They made an engagement to meet and talk it over the next day, when Dr. Stainback convinced the great general that the "Whosoever" of John 3:16 included him, and the latter made a complete surrender of his life to his Lord, united with the church and remained a constant member of the same until his death. His grave is now occupied by his grandchildren.

During the present pastorate substantial progress has been made, all indebtedness on the property having been cancelled, the membership materially increased, and a new manse recently added to the property of the society.
